

On December 19, 2019, with a written plea agreement, Deloach pleaded guilty to possession of a firearm by a felon. See [D.E. 32, 35]. On June 18, 2020, the court held Deloach's sentencing hearing and adopted the facts set forth in the Presentence Investigation Report ("PSR"). See [D.E. 43, 46, 48]. The court calculated Deloach's total offense level to be 13, his criminal history category to be VI, and his advisory guideline range to be 33 to 41 months' imprisonment. See [D.E. 48] 1. After thoroughly considering all relevant factors under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), the court sentenced Deloach to 36 months' imprisonment. See [D.E. 47, 48]. Deloach did not appeal.

On December 21, 2018, the First Step Act went into effect. See First Step Act, 132 Stat. at 5249. Before the First Step Act, only the Director of the Bureau of Prisons ("BOP") could file a motion for compassionate release. Under the First Step Act, a sentencing court may modify a sentence of imprisonment either upon a motion of the Director of the BOP "or upon motion of the defendant after the defendant has fully exhausted all administrative rights to appeal a failure of the [BOP] to bring a motion on the defendant's behalf or the lapse of 30 days from the receipt of such a request by the warden of the defendant's facility, whichever is earlier." 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A).

After a defendant meets the exhaustion requirement, a defendant must (1) demonstrate "extraordinary and compelling reasons" for a sentence reduction, or (2) be at least 70 years old, have served at least 30 years in prison, and have the Director of the BOP determine that the defendant is not a danger to the safety of another person or the community. Id. In deciding to reduce a sentence under section 3582(c)(1)(A), a court must consult the sentencing factors in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) and must ensure that a sentence reduction is "consistent with applicable policy statements" of the United States Sentencing Commission (the "Commission"). Id.

The Commission policy statements include U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13. Section 1B1.13 essentially parrots section 3582(c)(1)(A)'s requirements and adds that the defendant not be "a danger to the safety of any other person or to the community." U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13(2). Section 1B1.13's application notes provide examples of extraordinary and compelling reasons, including: (A) serious medical conditions of the defendant, (B) advanced age of the defendant when coupled with a serious deterioration in physical and mental health due to aging and having served at least 10 years or 75% of his or her imprisonment term (whichever is less), (C) family circumstances, or (D) another extraordinary and compelling reason. See U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13 cmt. n.1.<sup>1</sup> Application note 2 states

1. Extraordinary and Compelling Reasons.—Provided the defendant meets the requirements of subdivision (2), extraordinary and compelling reasons exist under any of the circumstances set forth below:

(A) Medical Condition of the Defendant.—

- (i) The defendant is suffering from a terminal illness (i.e., a serious and advanced illness with an end of life trajectory). A specific prognosis of life expectancy (i.e., a probability of death within a specific time period) is not required. Examples include metastatic solid-tumor cancer, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), end-stage organ disease, and advanced dementia.

(ii) The defendant is—

- (I) suffering from a serious physical or medical condition,
- (II) suffering from a serious functional or cognitive impairment, or
- (III) experiencing deteriorating physical or mental health because of the aging process, that substantially diminishes the ability of the defendant to provide self-care within the environment of a correctional facility and from which he or she is not expected to recover.

- (B) Age of the Defendant.—The defendant (i) is at least 65 years old; (ii) is experiencing a serious deterioration in physical or mental health because of the aging process; and (iii) has served at least 10 years or 75 percent of his or her term of imprisonment, whichever is less.

(C) Family Circumstances.—

- (i) The death or incapacitation of the caregiver of the defendant's minor child or minor children.
- (ii) The incapacitation of the defendant's spouse or registered partner when the defendant would be the only available caregiver for the spouse or registered partner.

that “an extraordinary and compelling reason need not have been unforeseen at the time of sentencing to warrant a reduction in the term of imprisonment.” U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13 cmt. n.2. Thus, the fact “that an extraordinary and compelling reason reasonably could have been known or anticipated by the sentencing court does not preclude consideration for a reduction under this policy statement.” Id. Application note 3 states, “[p]ursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 994(t), rehabilitation of the defendant is not, by itself, an extraordinary and compelling reason for purposes of this policy statement.” U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13 cmt. n.3.

The Commission has lacked a quorum since Congress enacted the First Step Act and has not updated U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13 to account for the First Step Act. Accordingly, section 1B1.13 does not provide a policy where an inmate files a motion for a sentence reduction under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A). See, e.g., United States v. High, No. 20-7350, 2021 WL 1823289, at *3 (4th Cir. May 7, 2021); United States v. Kibble, No. 20-7009, 2021 WL 1216543, at *3–4 (4th Cir. Apr. 1, 2021); United States v. McCoy, 981 F.3d 271, 280–84 (4th Cir. 2020). Rather, “[section] 1B1.13 only applies when a request for compassionate release is made upon motion of the Director of the [BOP].” Kibble, 2021 WL 1216543, at *3–4. Nevertheless, section 1B1.13 provides informative policy when assessing an inmate’s motion, but a court independently determines whether “extraordinary and compelling reasons” warrant a sentence reduction under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A)(i). See High, 2021 WL 1823289, at *3; McCoy, 981 F.3d at 284. In doing so, the court consults not only U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13, but also the text of 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A) and the

- (D) Other Reasons.—As determined by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, there exists in the defendant’s case an extraordinary and compelling reason other than, or in combination with, the reasons described in subdivisions (A) through (C).

section 3553(a) factors. See, e.g., McCoy, 981 F.3d at 280–84; United States v. Jones, 980 F.3d 1098, 1101–03 (6th Cir. 2020); United States v. Gunn, 980 F.3d 1178, 1180–81 (7th Cir. 2020); United States v. Ruffin, 978 F.3d 1000, 1007–08 (6th Cir. 2020); United States v. Brooker, 976 F.3d 228, 237–38 (2d Cir. 2020); United States v. Clark, No. 1:09cr336-1, 2020 WL 1874140, at *2 (M.D.N.C. Apr. 15, 2020) (unpublished).

On December 14, 2020, Deloach submitted a compassionate release request to the warden, which the warden denied on December 15, 2020. See [D.E. 66] 4; [D.E. 66-1] 1. Deloach appealed, and the BOP denied his appeal on January 5, 2021. See [D.E. 66] 4. The government has not invoked section 3582’s exhaustion requirement. See United States v. Alam, 960 F.3d 831, 833–34 (6th Cir. 2020).<sup>2</sup> Accordingly, the court addresses Deloach’s claim on the merits.

Deloach seeks compassionate release pursuant to section 3582(c)(1)(A). In support of his request, Deloach cites the COVID-19 pandemic, his bout with and recovery from COVID-19, his race, his obesity, and his breathing problems. See [D.E. 55] 1; [D.E. 66] 5–16; [D.E. 66-1] 2. Deloach also cites the conditions at USP Lee, his rehabilitation efforts, his release plan, and that he has served a significant portion of his sentence. See [D.E. 66] 8–10, 19–20; [D.E. 66-1] 1–2.

As for the medical condition of the defendant policy statement, the policy statement requires that the defendant is “suffering from a serious physical or medical condition . . . from which he or she is not expected to recover.” U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13 cmt. n.1(A)(ii). Although Deloach states that he suffers from obesity and breathing problems, he has not demonstrated that he is not going to recover from this condition or that it cannot be treated while Deloach serves his sentence. The same holds true were Deloach to contract COVID-19 again. Moreover, Deloach refused vaccination. See [D.E. 68] 18–19; [D.E. 68-1] 1–2. Deloach argues that the vaccine will not alleviate the COVID-19 pandemic in prison or his medical risks, but the vaccine will reduce his medical risks arising from COVID-19. Cf. [D.E. 70]. Accordingly, reducing Deloach’s sentence is not consistent with application note 1(A). See 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A).

<sup>2</sup> The Fourth Circuit has not addressed whether section 3582’s exhaustion requirement is a jurisdictional or claims-processing requirement. The court assumes without deciding that the requirement is a claims-processing rule, and that the government must “properly invoke” the rule for this court to enforce it. See Alam, 960 F.3d at 833–34.

As for the “other reasons” policy statement, the court assumes without deciding that the COVID-19 pandemic, Deloach’s medical conditions, Deloach’s rehabilitation efforts, and his release plan are extraordinary and compelling reasons under section 3582(c)(1)(A). Cf. United States v. Raia, 954 F.3d 594, 597 (3d Cir. 2020) (“[T]he mere existence of COVID-19 in society and the possibility that it may spread to a particular prison alone cannot independently justify compassionate release, especially considering BOP’s statutory role, and its extensive and professional efforts to curtail the virus’s spread.”). Even so, the section 3553(a) factors counsel against reducing Deloach’s sentence. See High, 2021 WL 1823289, at *4–7; Kibble, 2021 WL 1216543, at *4–5; United States v. Chambliss, 948 F.3d 691, 693–94 (5th Cir. 2020); Clark, 2020 WL 1874140, at *3–8.

Deloach engaged in serious criminal activity in December 2018. See PSR [D.E. 43] ¶¶ 6–11. Deloach, then a convicted felon, broke into his brother’s apartment in Rocky Mount, North Carolina, and stole his brother’s handgun. See id. Deloach also is a recidivist’s recidivist with convictions for possession of marijuana (three counts), unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, sell or deliver cocaine, maintaining a vehicle, dwelling, or place for a controlled substance, breaking and entering (seven counts), larceny after breaking and entering (five counts), injury to real property (two counts), larceny (two counts), driving while impaired, driving while license revoked (three counts), carrying a concealed weapon, possession of drug paraphernalia (two counts), possession of cocaine, possession of an open container, assault on a female, cyberstalking, and contempt. See id. ¶¶ 16–36.

Deloach also has performed poorly on supervision. See id. ¶¶ 17, 26–27, 29–30, 32, 34. Although Deloach has taken some positive steps while incarcerated on his federal sentence, he has sustained two infractions for failing to stand for headcount. See [D.E. 66] 19; [D.E. 66-1] 1–2.

The court has considered Deloach’s exposure to and recovery from COVID-19, his obesity, his rehabilitation efforts, and his release plan. Cf. Pepper v. United States, 562 U.S. 476, 480–81 (2011); High, 2021 WL 1823289, at *4–7; United States v. McDonald, 986 F.3d 402, 412 (4th Cir. 2021); United States v. Martin, 916 F.3d 389, 398 (4th Cir. 2019). Having considered the entire record, the steps that the BOP has taken to address COVID-19 and to treat Deloach, the section 3553(a) factors, Deloach’s arguments, the government’s persuasive response, and the need to punish Deloach for his serious criminal behavior, to incapacitate Deloach, to promote respect for the law, to deter others, and to protect society, the court declines to grant Deloach’s motion for compassionate release. See, e.g., Chavez-Meza v. United States, 138 S. Ct. 1959, 1966–68 (2018); High, 2021 WL 1823289, at *4–7; Ruffin, 978 F.3d at 1008–09; Chambliss, 948 F.3d at 693–94; United States v. Hill, No. 4:13-CR-28-BR, 2020 WL 205515, at *2 (E.D.N.C. Jan. 13, 2020) (unpublished), aff’d, 809 F. App’x 161 (4th Cir. 2020) (per curiam) (unpublished).

As for Deloach’s request for home confinement, Deloach seeks relief under the CARES Act. See [D.E. 66] 22. The CARES Act does not provide this court with the authority to grant home confinement. See United States v. Brummett, No. 20-5626, 2020 WL 5525871, at *2 (6th Cir. Aug. 19, 2020) (unpublished) (“[T]he authority to grant home confinement remains solely with the Attorney General and the BOP.”); United States v. McCoy, No. 3:19-CR-35-KDB-DCK, 2020 WL 5535020, at *1 (W.D.N.C. Sept. 15, 2020) (unpublished); United States v. Gray, No. 4:12-CR-54-FL-1, 2020 WL 1943476, at *3 (E.D.N.C. Apr. 22, 2020) (unpublished). Thus, the court dismisses Deloach’s request for home confinement.

II.

In sum, the court DENIES Deloach's motion for compassionate release [D.E. 55], and DISMISSES Deloach's request for home confinement.

SO ORDERED. This 13 day of May 2021.
